

Is this a false dawn?

Thursday, 11 August 2016

I got several messages asking whether the tide had really turned or was this a false dawn. I think, following the Mail corrupt top cops crusade spotting just how crooked the chiefs have been, and Hillsborough and other cases, with the Cliff, Lord Bramall, Gambo, Harvey Proctor, Leon Brittan type fiascos it only needs someone in the media to spot the encouraging false claims angle.

There will either be a whistle blower (believe me, thousands of middle ranking cops hate what has been going on) or a leaked memo about arrest before investigation and assisting accusers.

Every time there is a conviction, a police chief stands on court steps and virtually admits they want more false allegations and more convictions, preferably celebrities.

It has not yet dawned on them that this is conspiracy to pervert the course of justice.

But every appeal like David Bryant moves one step closer to somebody taking legal action or, more intelligently, reporting the police to the police. Surely somebody in Dorset Police must be close to finding themselves in court. Incompetence, corruption or criminality? Who knows.
