The results published by our weak Government illustrate how politicians, like police, are not interested in the truth but in good stories. Instead of doing anything which will improve quality and maximise benefit to us viewers and listeners, the BBC now has to publicise big salaries.

Money for superficial readers of superficial tabloid headlines to moan about. By God she is wealthy. Does he deserve 160 thousand? Are footballers overpaid? Simplistic slogan stories for imbeciles. Is not society wonderful?

You know how it will work. The big earners will form companies which will get millions for their services from the BBC whilst presenters and staff will be paid under 150,000 salary. Simples. Doh.
