

Why am I so happy?

Wednesday, 31 May 2017

A friend asked me why I was so happy with "everything going on"?

I answered that the weather has been fine, I've been driving around in Baby Car with the roof down, looking at the glorious Surrey countryside in the sunshine, had a fabulous meal, talked to so many great and supportive friends, delighted by the good news of the death blows to the False Allegations Industry by Janner, Rolf, Kato Harris and others, seeing Corbyn beat May in the media - what on earth is there to be miserable about?

So many others are sick, ill, dying, have suffered terrible losses.

I never stop counting my blessings and being grateful for a marvellous life still (at the moment) continuing.

I wouldn't have changed a thing so far. Another adventure!
